The foreigners of New York held a convention on Sanday. Sept. 22d uit., at which of their party. The object of the convention as stated was to effect such a union of their strength as to compel one or the other wings of the New York Democracy to give them a dar share of the nominations. This is the arrotagenee of which the American party complains, and is an indication of the great danger to which our institutions are exposed., It arises which our institutions are exposed. It arises revolutions of the planets and the changes of errig, own now like a small cloud no bigger than the treacasens. make its progress on a grander scale by the which our institutions are exposed. It arises now like a small cloud no bigger than the hand upon our political horizon; but rapidly it is increasing in size and import, a sit the whole country may be each rouded in its gloom, and ulless arrested in time, its terrible lightning will rend and shiver the very fane of our liberties and the glorous freedom of our land will be crushed out forever.

Within the last few years the foregares in this country have begun to realize their strength. They have been taught by the organs and leaders of the Aut-American party that they are reality superior in intelligence and critice to the stream of the whole system, relating to their votes; their meanest and most votes it produces have been basely pandered to by uncomparing to their strength, borner citizens.
